Trustees Studying Building

Cameron trustees meeting for an hour in regular session Thursday evening continued a discussion of a building and renovation program for the schools, and voted to employ a consulting architect-engineer for selected projects.

One of the top priorities will be the building of an addition to the ag department. This would make three units, sufficient space for the number of boys in the ag program, it was noted.

Other priorities will be set later by board members, following a tour of the present buildings.

In other business, trustees discussed purchase of a lot near Cameron Junior High school to be used for a new tennis court for the school. Costs would include 55 cents per square foot for a concrete slab.

A board of equalization was officially approved to include Ed Bigbee, George Dodd and C. G. Colburn.

Trustees approved a school calendar for the next school year which will have a starting date of August 27, following in-service training for teachers starting on August 20.

The board employed Johnny Cooksey of Rogers to be math teacher at high school.

The board also voted to cancel a list of unpaid personal property school taxes, which is standard procedure to clear the tax roll.

And the board voted to spend $550 on the new baseball field which is now under construction. The money will come out of the local maintenance fund. Supt. D. R. Dodson noted that ball games so far this year have brought in some $500.

DUCKS SLAM YOE 10-0 IN DISTRICT TILT

The Cameron Yoemen suffered their first loss of the season and the first game in district play when the Taylor Ducks overran Yoe 10-0 in a game Thursday night.

The game was the first of two or three to be played for the district title. The next game will be played Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Taylor.

In Thursday night's action, John Barron was the losing pitcher and winning pitcher was Mickey Reichenbach. Yoe gave up 10 walks and 9 hits and made three errors.

The Yoemen had only 2 hits during the night as Reichenbach struck out 15 batters.

Leading hitters for Taylor were J. Kasper, Paul Haag, and Reichenbach with 2 hits each.

Dallas and song leader will be the Rev. John McLaughlin.

Local ministers will take part in the program each evening. Music will be furnished by the local churches with a united choir each evening. Rev. Phil McKown is in charge of the music and practice before the Crusade. All those interested in helping the united choir are asked to practice 7 p.m. Monday, May 14, at the First Baptist Church.

The Crusade is part of the Key '73 emphasis throughout the U. S. and Canada which has as its theme: "Winning our Continent to Christ."

Communities throughout the country are participating with people of different denominations getting together to find a mutual faith, understanding and trust.

"Through this emphasis it is hoped that people outside the fellowship of the Church can be brought back again to enjoy fellowship with God and fellowmen," Rev. Alvis Coleman, president of the Cameron Ministers Association said.

The Ministers Association has said that everyone is invited to attend these meetings and bring friends and neighbors. If baby sitters are needed contact the First United Methodist Church or the First Baptist Church. Service will be provided at these two churches if needed.

Planets Come A Step Closer

By Leonard Santorelli

Reuter -- The era when man sets foot on the planets comes a step closer this week when America's first space station blasts off into earth orbit.

During the eight-month Skylab program, man will take a close look at the earth, the sun, and at his own ability to live and work in weightlessness inside a large metal cylinder, 270 miles above the earth.

The 100-ton tube is crammed with experimental equipment and gadgets to provide creature comforts for the astronauts; attached like wings outside are an array of solar cells and a highly sophisticated telescope for viewing the sun.

Skylab, which represents a new phase in the American space program, is a vital link between the Apollo missions and eventual manned exploration of nearer planets like Mars and Jupiter.

It will show whether man can function for long periods in a gravity-free atmosphere without losing his sanity or suffering physically; the project will furnish know-how on the feasibility of using a space station as a jumping-off point for journeys into deep space.

But manned trips to the planets are at least 15 years away, even if funds were available. Skylab's impact should be felt much sooner--and much closer to home.

The mission may help pinpoint rich mineral deposits here on earth, experts say. As a result of Skylab, famines may be averted, cheaper fuel created, disease-bearing viruses isolated and some of the sun's secrets unlocked.

The eyes, ears, and brain of the program are centered in the workshop, a converted second stage Saturn 1B rocket. The size of a three-bedroom house, it has many of the amenities of a modern home.

A Saturn V rocket will blast the station into orbit May 14 where it will spin around the globe once every 93 minutes. Three crews of astronauts are due to set up house inside, the first for 28 days, the other two for 56-day periods.

Already stowed aboard the station, sitting atop a launch pad at Cape Kennedy, are 2,100 pounds of canned, dehydrated, and frozen food and 6,000 pounds of water--enough for all three missions.

Twenty-four hours after the workshops launch, the first crew will blast off. They are Navy Capt. Charles (Pete), Conrad, the skipper and a veteran of three space flights, and Commander Paul J. Weitz and Joseph P. Kerwin, the first U. S. physician on a space flight.

The command module is scheduled to dock with the space station eight hours later. The astronauts will spend the first night inside their capsule, and after breakfast the next day, clamber into the workshop itself.

After the cramped command module, the three men may luxuriate in the sheer vastness of the workshop. They will be able to roam over much of the 10,000 cubic feet of the two-story craft -- 50 times the size of the Apollo capsules.

With air pumped in from external tanks, the astronauts can putter about virtually in shirt sleeves. They will, however, be outside the earth's gravitational pull, so everything will float in the lab and there will be no up or down.

A Heavyweight...

Texas' John Connally is going to Washington as a non-paid advisor to President Nixon. He will advise and assist Administration reorganization following indictment of two prior Nixon Cabinet members and revelation of Watergate activity which reads like a handbook in CIA basic training.

Mr. Connally's political timing is excellent, following announcement a week ago he was converting to the GOP amidst all the flack and controversy of Watergate. GOP loyalists will be unable to call him an opportunist.

He is on a non-paid basis, working in both foreign and domestic areas, which place him in a position to help the President and win plaudits for the potential of a 1976 presidential nomination.

Vice president Agnew has been asked to expand activity in domestic areas. It would seem Connally is being invited to make a major contribution without any Watergate stigma while the Vice President is already in the government which is under stress, the same stress

Connally is being asked to relieve.

Ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans and former Atty-Gen. John M. Mitchell are indicted on charges of influence peddling, conspiracy and perjury.

The high-level trauma of such events puts Mr. Connally in another unique position, that of robust, outspoken leadership which has moved him almost at will through the halls of power of both parties, which, by now, find few men of this particular quality and temperament.

Looking at a 48 percent popularity rating, the President also moved James R. Schlesinger from CIA directorship to nominee as secretary of defense, succeeding Elliot Richardson who is now attorney-general designate.

Career CIA-man William E. Colby has been promoted to head the agency.

Central in all these changes, however, is the Connally appointment. He is the heavyweight, this Texan, who returns to Washington when many public men would finesse the opportunity.

Just By Looking...

Tuesday's earth orbit will put the space program further into agriculture, 270 miles up.

The three astronauts will survey from their Skylab everything from crops to the pine-bark beetle, around the world.

It must be difficult for the agricultural community to imagine the space program benefiting the farm or ranch. But that is precisely what it is capable of, among many other things.

"The spectral signature" of various crops, forests, minerals and petroleum prospects yield all kinds of information, not only on how much is growing or commercially productive where, but how things are going for crops which could benefit by preventive treatment without a man touching them on the ground. And months before the naked eye could see any problem.

This is from 270 miles up, an orbiting workshop, which is planting, pruning and assisting nature's productivity for man with the vital stuff of order--information. And just by looking.

Conditions Better In Cuba

By Claude Regin

HAVANA
Reuter -- Living conditions for Cuban consumers have taken a turn for the better with a greater range of foodstuffs, improved public transport and more durable goods available.

The plight of the car driver here has also improved. He is now able to buy as much gas as he can afford. The government announced recently that gasoline would be sold in unlimited quantities for the time being because existing stocks were sufficient.

Rationing officially remains in force at five gallons a month for a small car, it explained. But car owners can now buy gas in unlimited quantities at certain stations -- although at double the price: $1.80 a gallon instead of 90 cents. Observers here expect the two systems to coexist until gasoline rationing is officially abolished. At the same time, more public buses -- mostly Japanese -- have reinforced the fleets of older British-made buses in the country's main cities and passenger queues have dwindled considerably.

Meanwhile, housewives report a steadier supply of fruit and vegetables such as pineapples, bananas, watermelons, cabbage, salads and potatoes. Previously these items appeared at irregular intervals but the supply was so erratic that they were likely to disappear from the stores over night.

This time the supply has been steadier. Fruit and vegetables have been sold in abundance and for the first time in many months, even years, the supply has exceeded the demand, something of a rarity in severely food-rationed Cuba. So me vegetables are even rotting in some shops.

One dark spot remains. Meat, under a new distribution system introduced two months ago, can only be bought every nine days instead of every seven days.

The government explains that it was forced to take such drastic action in order to preserve the country's livestock. From 1959 to 1967, cattle registered a spectacular increase coupled with a considerable improvement in quality thanks to large-scale cross-breeding of the local "Cebu" strain with Swiss and Canadian varieties.

In 1967, Cuba's beef cattle were estimated at seven million head but during the next three years they suffered a serious drop as many cows had to be slaughtered to satisfy greater demand resulting from an unexpected population boom.

'No Change' Redistricting

By Bill Boykin

Daring more federal court challenges, the House Reapportionment Committee has advanced a "redistricting" bill that makes virtually no changes in present representative districts.

The Committee bill, approved 12-8, would retain multi-member House districts in all but the three metropolitan counties of Bexar, Dallas and Harris.

Rep. Joe Wyatt of Bloomington, the sponsor, said he would accept an amendment on the House floor to give Tarrant County single-member districts like those in the three larger counties.

Chairman Rep. Fred Head of Troup favored dividing all urban counties, which now have two or more representatives, into single-member districts. Committee action, in effect, took control of the bill from Head on the floor.

A three-judge federal court in January, 1972, ordered single-member House districts for Bexar and Dallas counties and gave the legislature until July 1 to rewrite a 1971 reapportionment scheme.

Representatives were warned before the vote that if the U. S. Supreme Court upholds the 1972 ruling, it is likely to order single-member, individual House districts in all urban counties.

The bill as advanced further did not meet federal court disapproval of a 9.9 per cent population spread between smallest and most-populous Texas House districts.

However, Wyatt contended the Supreme Court in a Virginia case later upheld a 16.4 per cent deviation.

"ENERGY" ADS

The House Natural Resources Committee held a hearing on HSR 131 last week -- a measure that requests advertisers to "not use advertisements to urge the public to use more power or energy than is reasonably necessary."

House authors are Representatives Ben Grant, Marshall, and Woody Denson, Houston.

Grant testified before the Committee that his bill was not intended to regulate advertising of energy companies in Texas -- but to urge advertisers to "teach or persuade the public to conserve or decrease the use of energy and to avoid all wasteful uses of power."

He cited some of the copy used by Conn Edison -- a major utility in the East. A spokesman for the Southwest Electric Power Company told the Committee that his company was against the bill because they did not feel the state should "get into the business of curtailing advertising."

"We have a surplus of power," he said. "Conn Edison has a shortage. We need to urge our consumers to use more electricity in the winter for heating purposes. We have the power available, and we need to sell it in order to pay for our bonds." "Our consumers use our power supply in the summer when air conditioning is needed," he continued. "But we need to 'sell' them on winter-time power consumption through our advertising programs. We don't think the state legislature should get into advertising controls in Texas."

Grant said he was merely trying to encourage advertisers to avoid waste of energy, and that he would oppose "mandatory" regulations also.

The bill was sent to the Oil and Gas Subcommittee of the Natural Resources Committee.

New Book Defends Pope

By John Organ

LONDON

Reuter -- A British historian has stepped into the continuing controversy over the role of Pope Pius XII during World War II, defending the late pontiff against charges that he failed to take action to save the Jews from the Nazi extermination camps.

Anthony Rhodes analyses the controversy in his book "The Vatican in the Age of the Dictators" (published by Hodder and Stoughton).

He says it is established beyond all doubt that the humane work of the Pope in helping suffering European Jewry during World War II, not only by large donations but by hiding them from their persecutors, was in the finest charitable traditions of the Roman Catholic Church.

But criticism of Pius XII for his conduct during the war arises from quite different grounds.

Critics say that when Adolf Hitler was putting into practice his "final solution" by exterminating the Jews in 1942, the Pope should have pronounced publicly against the Nazi crime of genocide, condemning it before the whole world.

Others have asked why he did not excommunicate Hitler, a renegade Catholic.

The Pope is quoted as telling the Italian priest Don Pizzo Ucaivizzi at the time: "I have often considered excommunication, to castigate in the eyes of the entire world the fearful crime of genocide. But after much praying and many tears, I realize that my condemnation would not only fail to help the Jews, it might even worsen their situation."

"No doubt a protest would have gained me the praise and respect of the civilized world, but it would have submitted the poor Jews to an even worse persecution." Rhodes' book describes how when the Dutch Catholic bishops condemned the Nazi persecution of the Jews in 1942, the Nazis' only reaction was to round up more Jews, including Catholics of Jewish stock.

When Archbishop Cesare Orsenigo, the papal nuncio in Berlin, brought up the question of the Jews in a meeting with Hitler at the Nazi dictator's mountain refuge at Berchtesgaden, Hitler seemed to get in a frenzy. He began drumming the window pane with his fingertips, and then flung a glass of water to the ground.

As early as 1937, the Roman Catholic Church had made clear its attitude to Hitler. Pope Pius XI issued an encyclical letter - entitled "Mit Brennender Sorge" (With Burning Grief) - which vigorously condemned Nazism as a new form of paganism and described Hitler as "a mad prophet possessed of repulsive arrogance."

Industry Survey

Developed At UT

A questionnaire devised by two University of Texas scholars makes it possible for a city to survey what attitudes its citizens have about new industry.

Drs. Grady Bruce and Robert T. Green of the UT Marketing Department say the feelings of citizens frequently are overlooked in economic development plans.

Because it reveals a "profile" of citizen thinking, the survey model can be useful in measuring public support for new industry as well as in identifying types of industry a city's residents would find most desirable.

Russian Dissident Movement Stalls

By Julian Nundy

MOSCOW

Reuter -- The Russian dissident movement, which in recent years protested frequently to the authorities about alleged injustices, now seems finished as an organized entity.

Since the end of 1971 a series of arrests, interrogations and searches has effectively stilled the movement's Voice, the underground chronicle of current events.

The KGB (Soviet security police), acting in a case known as number 24, carried out a spate of investigations reportedly ordered by top communist party officials, apparently with the aim of ending the chronicle's publication.

The last edition of the typewritten journal appeared last October. Until then it had circulated more or less every two months for five years.

One young Russian, although never an active member of the dissident movement, but in general sympathy with its aims, said that because of the chronic failure to appear and arrests of people thought to be connected with it, "dissent as a movement can now be considered finished."

A number of active participants, such as academician Andrei Sakharov, a father of the Soviet hydrogen bomb and a founder of the unofficial Soviet Human Rights Committee, were still at liberty but had lost much of their effectiveness with the absence of the journal, which reported the fate of those who criticized the regime.

Informants here have said the reason for the halt in publication centered on a KGB threat to make random arrests each time a new issue appeared.

While its authors, whose identities are a closely guarded secret, assessed this threat, they had postponed publication, they said.

Meanwhile, there have been rumors that another edition has been prepared or is the process of preparation.

Some sources say it will be circulated among the unknown number of its readers, but its appearance will be purely "symbolic" -- a demonstration that dissatisfaction still exists and that some people are still ready to voice their feelings.

They added that it would be the last edition for the foreseeable future.

Despite the arrests which have seriously depleted the dissidents ranks, sources say the journals authors themselves have escaped arrest.

With this apparently in mind, the KGB began letting dissenters know that each new issue would result in arrests, but there has been at least one call in Samizdat, the underground press, for resistance to this alleged blackmail.

Of dissenters already in detention in Moscow, the two most well known, Pyotr Yakir and Viktor Krasin, are said to have recanted and appealed to other activists to give up their work.

Among works in the Lundell Library are those by most of the famous names in botanical sciences -- including Darwin and Linnaeus, plus a superb assemblage of literature on orchids.

Relics Of Hitler's Past Now Big Headaches

By Alan Cowell

WEST GERMANY

Reuter -- Three relics of Germany's Nazi past are providing city authorities here with a headache.

The problem is: what to do with a mammoth, roofless meeting hall, a crumbling rally stadium and an avenue the size of an airport runway?

Originally, the three constructions were part of the site chosen by Adolf Hitler for his well-orchestrated but hysterical Nazi party rallies.

The brown-shirted fanatics of his party would strut along the wide alleyway from their camping grounds, and assemble in the stadium where the swastika emblem stood proudly above Hitler's podium.

The congress hall, an imposing neo-classical building shaped like a large letter U, would one day accommodate European delegates to Hitler's victorious meetings, according to the Fuehrer's plan.

But the plans -- like the rest of Hitler's dreams -- came to a shuddering halt in the second World War.

Now, Sunday afternoon strollers take the air in the rally stadium, and motorists repair their cars on the avenue, or use the shell of the congress hall as a car-park.

City authorities, embarrassed by these imposing symbols of Hitler's power, have discovered to their discomfort that purpose -- built as they were, they have no possible function in modern West Germany.

But, in any attempt to blow them up, authorities would need so much explosive that there is a strong risk that nearby housing and office blocks would be damaged by the blast.

Plans for the site have all stopped short of removal of the buildings, which stand near Nuremberg's new soccer stadium where 1974 world cup matches are to be played.

Building experts still recall that the Bundeswehr (West German Armed Forces) had to use their most powerful explosives to destroy the 24 stone towers which Hitler had built in the area.

The rest of the complex is just as tough, Hitler having intended it to last the 1,000 years which he promised his third reich would survive.

It looks as though the buildings could even do just that, even though the site of the 24 towers have been grassed over and become a hilly park.

A spokesman for the city authorities said: "There are no plans whatever to do anything with the buildings. We've thought of schemes, but none of them have ever come to anything."

But, he added, the complex still has its uses. The congress hall provides a few store-houses and garages. The March - past avenue makes a good car-park. And once a year, young men in souped-up cars race around the stadium which once resounded to the stamp of jack-boots.

Second-Day Stretcher

Meat leftover from a baked ham dinner can be converted into an economical yet distinguished dish that merits a place on the company luncheon table. Ham a la King is a pleasing example.

Simply add cubes of cooked ham, canned mushrooms (stems and pieces), chopped pimiento, sliced ripe olives and chopped hard cooked egg to a medium white sauce and heat through. Serve the mixture on toast triangles. It's a smooth and easy recipe that will delight guests. Makes fine family fare too!

BHS Elects Cheerleaders

Cheerleaders for the 1973-74 school year were recently elected at Buckholts High School.

The cheerleaders are: Debra McNeill, Laura Junek, who will be Seniors. Debbie Matthews who will be a Sophomore and Laura Kuzel a Freshman.

Food Needs Change For Seniors

As a person grows older, his nutritional needs change, one authority pointed out.

"The senior citizen requires nutrients and food energy just like a younger person -- but in different amounts," Karen Kreipke, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, explained.

"When selecting foods during May -- Senior Citizens Month -- and throughout the year, the Daily Food Guide is beneficial. Choose foods from each of its four basic food groups -- milk, fruits and vegetables, meat, and bread-cereal -- for a balanced diet."

Senior citizens need two or more cups of milk daily -- either as fluid milk or a combination of milk group foods -- all kinds of milk, cheese and ice cream.

"An older person needs fewer calories in his diet. Knowing this, many could utilize skim, lowfat and buttermilk -- which provide calcium to keep bones strong, yet are low in calories.

"Other calorie-wise choices include cottage cheeses -- and ice milk, which has fewer calories but more calcium than ice cream.

"The fruit and vegetable group offers considerable variety for diets. Of four servings daily, utilize one which provides vitamin C and another which supplies vitamin A. The recommended serving is 1/2 cup or a usual portion.

"Cantaloupe, grapefruit, oranges, strawberries, watermelon, asparagus tips, broccoli, greens, potatoes cooked in their jackets and tomatoes are good sources of vitamin C."

Poultry Heads 'Best Buy' List

Chicken and turkey, though higher - priced than a year ago, remain economical mealtime choices, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt.

The consumer marketing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, listed current beef values as liver, ground beef, round steaks and roasts, chuck roasts and steaks.

"Pork prices continue at the higher price level of the past month with best values on picnics, shoulder roasts and steaks, and end-cut loin roasts and chops. Some markets will feature canned hams."

The specialist reported fresh fruit and vegetables in best supply include grapefruit, oranges, apples and bananas.

Also cabbage, carrots, potatoes, mustard, collards, turnip greens, radishes and green onions.

Citing eggs as a "nutritious, economical and convenient" food to serve, the specialist advised purchasing them from refrigerated cases and storing them with the large end up to help maintain quality.

"Eggs may absorb odors from other foods, so they should be stored covered. A few days' supply stores better in a plastic refrigerator dish or plastic bag."

"Temperature changes during storage cause egg whites to become thin and less desirable for frying or poaching," she added.

Paternity Act Proposed In Family Law Reforms

Remember when a mother might tell her child that his baby sister was deposited on the doorstep by a friendly stork?

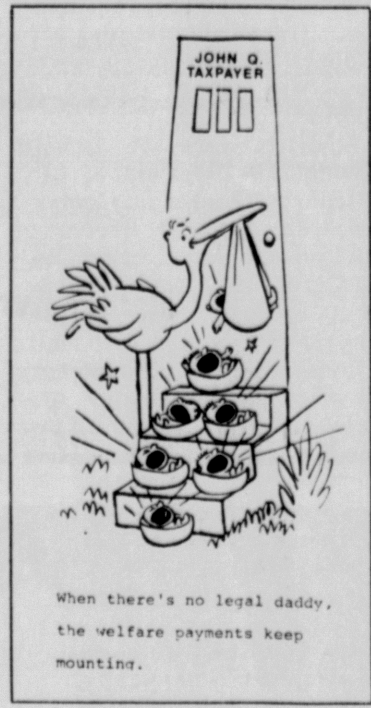

Today's sophisticated youngsters are no longer taken in by stork stories, but Texas law still solemnly adheres to a similar fiction. It says that a child whose mother and father are not married does not have a father.

Nobody is fooled by this story, but the result is that thousands of children cannot claim support from their fathers and the tax bill for welfare payments keeps mounting.

For this reason a paternity act, making the fathers as well as the mothers of children born out of wedlock responsible for their support, will be one of the family law reforms to be presented to the Texas Legislature by the State Bar of Texas. Other proposals will be designed to provide additional safeguards for abused children and to strengthen the adoption laws.

Texas shares with Idaho the distinction of being the only states in the nation and among the few governments in the western world without a paternity law. Under present Texas law the father of the illegitimate child has neither the obligations nor the privileges of parenthood. The mother alone is liable for support, and if she cannot manage, the burden is shifted to the taxpayers via the welfare rolls.

The State Welfare Board has come out in favor of a

Conservation Application Prepared

The Central Texas Resource Conservation and Development project application has been prepared and sent to the various agencies for planning approval.

The executive council chairman stated that he is well pleased with the local support and assistance given by Milam County sponsors and others who helped plan and prepare this project application.

This is a six-county project that is designed to help people take better care of their natural resources and, at the same time, improve their community's economy. Milam County Soil Conservation districts and the County Commissioners Court are the charter sponsors of the project.

Dalton Caffey, commissioner from Thorndale, represents the County on the executive council. N. N. Newman from Rockdale is the soil conservation district's representative.

The sponsors have also selected a 12-member countywide committee to help develop a plan of action when the project is approved. This committee is now ready to organize and start looking at Milam County's resource needs and potentials. They will need inputs from all segments of the county to make this a local project that will fit the needs and desires of local people.

Carved wood doors in widely available stock patterns lend richness to a house at a fraction of the custom-made cost.

Late Mowing Saves Wild Seed

AUSTIN

Highway rights of way are now blanketed with more gaudy color than ever before -- thanks to a policy of late mowing that allows wildflower seeds to mature and, of course, a lot of help from Mother Nature.

As in the past, instructions have gone out to Highway Department maintenance forces to delay full-scale mowing operations until seed pods mature and the wild flowers can re-seed themselves as nature intended. As a direct result of this mowing policy in the past several years, Texas has the best stands of bluebonnets, Indian paint brush and other wild flowers ever.

Although this results in some roadsides of the more than 70,000 miles of the State-maintained highway system looking a little shaggy late in the season, it does assure that there will be another magnificent display next spring, depending upon favorable growing conditions.

Highway officials point out that there will be some selective mowing of the right of way during the growing season. In areas where growth is particularly heavy, crews will mow along the pavement edge and at highway intersections as a safety measure.

In some areas, growth is so luxuriant that selective mowing is necessary to keep it from choking out all other vegetation. In the Coastal Bend region, for example, some heavy stands of clover have been mowed to prevent it from stifling protective grass cover.

Wildflowers are not "just pretty" -- they are an important tool in the maintenance of the sprawling Texas highway system. The natural growth of wild flower and grass cover prevents erosion and deterioration of roadside slopes. Of course, this saves the public thousands of dollars each year in maintenance costs.

paternity law. State Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell said, "The fathers of these illegitimate children are roaming the street... and I think they ought to be made to show some responsibility."

The proposed Texas paternity act is carefully designed to prevent its use by an unscrupulous woman for blackmail. Both the mother and the child must submit to blood tests or the suit will be dismissed. If the blood test evidence, presented at a secret pre-trial hearing, shows the defendant could not be the father of the child, the suit is dismissed and never becomes a matter of public record.

Today's blood testing procedures allow for the comparison of more than 30 factors, and experts in the field say that the chances are overwhelming that if the defendant is innocent, the child will have a blood factor not possessed by the defendant, thus proving innocence.

The Bar is also suggesting some changes in the Texas adoption law. These are aimed principally at making sure that the legal rights of the natural parents are finally and forever terminated before the child is adopted. This has been complicated by a 1972 United States Supreme Court ruling holding that the father of illegitimate children has a right to object to their adoption. Inasmuch as present Texas law does not even recognize the existence of the "illegitimate father," these revisions are needed at once.

Other proposed changes would deal with the problems arising from the parents, who because of their own personality problems, abuse or neglect their children, sometimes to the point of death.

Personal Care Appliance Good Graduation Gift

Beauty machines, or personal care appliances, make excellent graduation gifts. "That special graduate would probably enjoy receiving and using one of many such electric appliances--hair dryer, hair setter, makeup mirror, shave cream dispenser and styling comb/dryer," says Lillian Cochran.

The home management specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, discussed several selection factors for each personal appliance.

"Hair dryers are available in either portable or

New Color For Lines On Highway

Inside line pavement markings on divided highways will take on a new color soon, the Texas Highway Department has announced.

Soon the inside edge line will be yellow to conform to changes in the Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices issued by the U. S. Department of Transportation.

Previously both the inside and outside edge lines were painted white. Painting the inside edgeline yellow will correspond with the solid yellow center line in undivided highways, which denotes a restriction against passing. Thus, the yellow edgeline will serve as a reminder to avoid crossing the median into opposing lanes of traffic.

Target date for changing the markings in Texas and elsewhere in the United States is December 31, 1974.

Market Report

There were 1,200 cattle and calves consigned to the Cameron Livestock Auction Thursday, compared to 575 last week and 390 last year. Slaughter cows were steady to 50 higher. Slaughter bulls 50 lower.

Few slaughter calves steady. Feeder steers and steer calves steady. Feeder heifers fully 50 higher. Heifer calves steady. Stock cows 1.00 to 2.00 higher. Cow and calf pairs fully 5.00 higher. Demand was good on thin offerings.

Slaughter cows, utility 30 to 33. Slaughter bulls utility 39 to 42.50. Feeder steers choice 76 to 81. Feeder heifers choice 59 to 63.

Stock cows choice 35 to 42. Cow and calf pairs choice 430 to 505. Good 370 to 450.

Hog receipts totaled 544 with barrows and gilts fully 1.00 higher and sows 50 higher. US 1-2 barrows and gilts brought 34.40 to 35.90. Sows US 1-2 brought 32.50 to 33.50.

salon styles. Although the salon style requires more storage space, it usually provides faster drying time.

"Look for models featuring a bonnet or hood large enough to fit over rollers, a long hose and cord to allow convenient movements, and a variety of heat settings. Also, controls should be easily accessible and the motor quiet," Miss Cochran noted.

A second beauty machine -- the hair setter -- is especially handy for "perking up" a hairdo between shampoo and giving quick sets.

"Desirable features include an adequate supply of rollers -- in several sizes -- and a signal light indicating the unit is on the rollers ready."

"Most provide a carrying case for portability, while some feature optional misting to prevent hair from drying out."

Popular makeup mirrors provide good light and sight for applying makeup, the specialist continued.

"Some models offer natural daylight and artificial light, as well as a magnifying mirror for closeups. Generally, diffused lights reduce glare, and a carrying case or wall mount adds convenience."

Another personal care appliance -- the shave cream dispenser -- provides hot, moist later at a touch of the finger.

"Choose a dispenser which fits all aerosol shaving cream cans -- and has an on-off switch with temperature control for added convenience. Waterproof and shock resistant housing ensures safety," she added.

The specialist pointed out that a styling comb/dryer dries and styles hair at the same time -- making it a favorite among longer-haired men and women.

"Select a lightweight model with an easy-grip handle and a wide range of temperatures."

"Additional comb and brush attachments are often desired, as are rechargeable batteries or long cords for convenience."

"When selecting a gift, consider the graduate's individual needs -- and remember that all electrical appliances should have an Underwriter's Laboratories (UL) Seal of Approval. This seal indicates the appliance passed certain safety tests," the specialist concluded.

Accent on Health

Emergency care received before a wreck victim reaches a hospital could make the difference in a patient arriving alive or dead, says the Texas State Department of Health.

Since 1968 the Health Department has worked to raise the odds on victims arriving alive through intensive emergency care training programs for ambulance attendants.

Although other factors must be considered, emergency training is part of the reason why there has been a decline in traffic deaths in rural areas as compared to the total percentage of traffic deaths across the state.

Two programs are carried out by the Civil Defense and Traffic Safety Division. One is an 18-hour course called an Emergency Care Attendant School, while the other is a comprehensive Emergency Medical Technician School with a minimum of 72 hours of instruction.

So far this year 11 ECA Schools have been held in Texas. Since the first school was conducted in San Angelo in 1968, the 18-hour program has been presented to 12,652 students with 8,784 successfully completing the courses. Many of those trained came from rural communities which had been without trained ties which had been without trained emergency medical care personnel. The training was presented close enough to their homes so they could attend one of the 135 courses offered in that span since 1968.

The longer Emergency Medical Technician School was conducted the first time in 1970 in Austin. Thirty-one others have been concluded since then with 889 graduates from an enrollment of 1,062 persons.

EMT Schools are underway now in Galveston, Beaumont, Austin, Dallas, Webster, Victoria, Wharton, Nacogdoches, Baytown, Bryan, Brownwood and San Angelo. After their completion in June, three others are scheduled for El Paso, Alice and Texarkana.

Students attending the Emergency Care Attendant School receive instruction in resuscitation, cardiac massage, splinting of fractures, handling of emotionally disturbed patients and emergency childbirth. Many of the students attending the course do so out of dedication to their community and at their own expense. Realizing this, the State Health Department provides training in the students' own or neighboring community.

With the cooperation of local medical societies, the State Health Department conducts the school free of charge to all students.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN

Now that the weather's nice, and you're spending more time outdoors, you may be noticing that the house could do with a little fixing up.

That kind of thinking might make one susceptible to a home improvement salesman's suggestions for a new roof, aluminum siding, or a remodeling job.

But, be very cautious about agreeing to any construction work until you are certain you are dealing with a bona fide contractor who makes a specific work proposal, complete with plans, specifications and cost estimates. There are literally thousands of Texas builders who can be depended upon for a workmanlike job.

Too often, homeowners, have been fast-talked into unwanted, unneeded and unsatisfactory "improvements," only to find that the so-called contractor has flown the coop, leaving the homeowner with an expensive, long-term installment note which had been sold to a financing company.

In the legitimate construction trade, these home improvements fly - by - nights are known as the "hit-and-run variety." Both the Texas Association of Home Builders and the National Home Improvement Council provide advice telling you what to expect in dealing with a reputable builder, and how to avoid involvements with the type who offices only out of the trunk of his car.

Through complaints handled by members of the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division staff, we have learned that the "hit-and-run" operators prefer to zero in on low-income neighborhoods, but may turn up anywhere.

They know that the folks who find money hard to come by have great pride in home ownership. And they play on that pride.

The typical gambit is to show the man or lady of the house a photograph of a pretty cottage finished with fancy siding. If he protests that he doesn't have the funds to remodel, the salesman counters with an "easy - payment" installment proposal.

If the customer still resists, saying that he already is overloaded with payments, he may be tempted with a plan to "consolidate" his bills and the improvement cost under one installment note.

One easy way to tell the unscrupulous home improvements salesman from the contractor you can count on is his insistence on getting you to sign on the dotted line right away.

A regular contractor will expect the homeowner to get bids and estimates from three or four firms, and will present exact plans and specifications for your consideration. Also, he will tell you which financial institutions usually make loans for his company's home improvements, and ask of you would like to go through one of them.

Baylor Choir To Sing In Europe

The Baylor University Chapel Choir, directed by Dr. Euell Porter, will be on concert tour in Germany and Scotland beginning May 17.

A preliminary concert will be presented at 7:30 p.m. May 16 in the First Baptist Church of Waxahachie.

The 43-member choir will fly to New York May 17, and then to Frankfurt by way of London. While in Germany, the choir will sing concerts in Aalen, Hessisch-Lichtenau, Einbeck, Hameln, Kamp-Lintfort, Bochum and Berlin.

The choir's appearances will be a forerunner to a summer evangelistic crusade sponsored by World Evangelism Foundation, Porter said.
